For a few weeks I've been working on creating a custom shiviti for my friend Sara, and though we haven't yet talked through our ideas, I have been invoking matriarch Sarah and exploring what we 'know' and don't know about her, and calling upon her for wisdom and guidance. I clearly remember the feeling of visiting her tomb in Hebron--in the Cave of Machpelah; it was a powerful and demanding energy, and just what I imagine would be needed for the foundation/formation of 'a people', for the making of souls (Gen. 12:5)
