

OMER 2019

WEEK 2: GEVURAH (DISCIPLINE)

DAY 8: HESED OF GEVURAH

According to Cornell West, "Justice is what love looks like in public." Boundaries are not bad, and strictures are not harshness. From the midst of a world of roiling chaos, we can welcome the order of strong justice as a balm.

- Rabbi Mira Wasserman

DAY 9: GEVURAH OF GEVURAH

Gevurah, Holding Power, is the pipeline through which love and kindness flow. At the deep core of holding is the holding that makes the holding effortless, like carrying a baby from the inside. It is not superficial, tight or rigid. It is strong, resilient, and alive.

- Rabbi Vivie Mayer

DAY 11: NETZACH OF GEVURAH

Social injustice and climate catastrophe loom. Sustainability is far off; we'll get there only through hard, holy, inconvenient choices. The ongoing victory and glory (Netzach) we desire requires strong moral boundaries (Gevurah) today.

- Rabbi Fred Scherlinder Dobb

DAY 10: TIFERET OF GEVURAH

Cultivate discernment of your soul's whisper; it leads you to your true power, your unique way in which to be a channel of Divine Splendor.

- Rabbi Me'irah Iliinsky

DAY 12: HOD OF GEVURAH

If I'm grounded in my story, I'm strong enough to share it with the world. Everyone has a gift to share. Our confidence in the unique person we are acts as the glory within our strength.

- Rabbi Elyssa Cherney

DAY 13: YESOD OF GEVURAH

Let gentle strength be my foundation as I walk the path of love, surrender, faith, hope and action in service to God, myself and you, dear ones, reflecting the divine mystery that binds us all.

- Alden Solovy

Art by D'vorah Horn

DAY 14: MALCHUT OF GEVURAH

The One Who Separates sky from the branches that reach for her also created horizons, roots, wings, and twilight. When our hands touch, the precipice between one and another is a window, every boundary an opportunity to connect with the sacred.

- Heather Paul

ART BY D'VORAH HORN

ritualwell
TRADITION & INNOVATION